QA WordPress Plugin Tester

Description

We are looking for QA WordPress plugin tester, to work with us full-time testing challenging, interesting, cool new stuff.

Responsibilities

For this role, you will provide beta testing for all plugin and service releases. This includes user testing, functionality tests, regression tests, compatibility tests against different versions of WordPress and PHP and popular third-party plugins, measuring performance, reporting issues and monitoring the work to resolve them, producing screenshots or video to illustrate how to reproduce an issue.

Qualifications

You must be super familiar with WordPress, have experience in testing WordPress plugins and theme frameworks, know enough about MySQL and Git, understand the concept of black-box testing, white box testing, regression tests, unit testing, user testing, automated and manual testing, have sufficient knowledge on CSS, PHP and JavaScript to know how to narrow down possible sources/triggers of a bug/issue and write detailed steps on how to consistently reproduce it.

Job Benefits

You'll be working 40 hours a week in an awesome team.

This job ad is for a paid trial. Once you pass your trial, you would be joining a team of around 100 WordPress experts from all over the world.

We also offer a bunch of benefits for those passing trial, this includes 28 days paid leave every year (up to 35, earn another day for every year you work with us), share in the company profits every year we hit our targets, paid trips to WordCamps, general and tech expenses budget that increase each consecutive year you work for us.

You can work from absolutely anywhere – we've got an awesome team of around 100 people scattered around the world with the main office in Melbourne, Australia. You'll be working on both new and existing plugins and services for WPMU DEV members.

Ok..... Are you ready to put your skills to the test?

For a chance to come and work with us and to push the envelope with what WordPress can do, to be in at the start of some incredible projects and to enjoy your work more than you previously ever thought was possible, please complete the attached QA Test.
