

wpmudev

As you know, we're looking for some super talented people to come work at WPMU DEV. Are you the one we've been searching for?

This task sheet will help us figure out what kind of superhero you are.

Note: Working on a distributed team provides a lot of freedom but requires self-motivation, incredible communication, and the ability to follow guidelines.

We will not consider applications that do not include this completed task sheet.

Your portfolio, example work, and creativity are far more valuable to us than your experience or education... Success is marked with clear deliverables, targets, and deadlines.

Crushing it in one area but not ready for the rest? Don't worry. We can provide some training if you're exceptional in one medium. Share links where you excel and let us know in what areas you could improve.

1. Give us links to your personal social media accounts or accounts you manage... you know, the ones you're most proud of. Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, Instagram – show us your social prowess. If you didn't write the posts, create the images, or make the videos tell us what role you played.

2. Are you a skilled writer? What posts have you put together? Link to examples of your work. Bonus points for showing technical examples – docs, technical guides, opinion, tutorials, news. Show us you're able to create authority content.

3. Share video, images, or other creatives you produced.

4. Have you ever built a WordPress website, blog, or landing page (WordPress.org self-hosted). We would love to see an example of your work! Share a link to your finest site.

5. Finally, tell us why you are the right fit for WPMU DEV.

