Blog Writer Application
Task
WPMU DEV

So you want to become a WPMU DEV Blog Writer - why else would you be here?

The person we're in search of will have intimate knowledge of WordPress tied together with a dazzling bow of experience within blog writing.

This mini-task is designed to find out a little bit more about you, your writing style and how you think and approach day-to-day activities. No need to sweat, it's pretty simple.

Your completed task should be sent directly to us. You can either answer inline, or you can create a separate text file and number the answers. Good luck!

P.S. Please refrain from using grammar assistance tools (including Google Docs’ built-in spell check). We want this to be a fair assessment of your abilities and we can monitor whether you've had help or not.

Be the hero we need, come join us in our mission at WPMU DEV!

What's wrong here:
Create a bookmark to "Title" from "Jump to title" using below HTML

Jump to title
<h2>Title</h2>

Fill in the missing words

(there, their, they’re)

Many people use WordPress to build ____ websites. Currently, ____ are over 75 million websites built using WordPress.

(what, which, who)

_____ member of The Beatles was your favorite?

_____ arm did you break?

_____ color is your new car?

Add the punctuation

It’s important to know when to add an apostrophe Theres often a lot of confusion as to whether an apostrophe should be added when you change a word from its singular to its plural form.

Fridays my favorite day of the week. Oh I do love Fridays.

Tidy up this paragraph!

To be a Blog Writer, it’s imperative that your able to write in clear, plane English. You’ll need to be able to write an easy-to follow set of instructions and you’re knowledge of Wordpress should be top notch. Having some knowledge of code, whether that be HTML, CSS or PHP would be advantageous, as would any experience writing product guides and manuals or anything that brakes down technical information easy.

Communicating with the team
Imagine that you’re working on a blog writing assignment and discover that a) you don’t have access to the document containing the brief, b) you need login details to access the test site (so you can take screenshots), and c) you need the artwork team to create a banner for your blog post.

Please write a message showing us how you would request all of the above.

Awesome, - now all you have to do is return the task and the team will be back in contact within 5-10 working days, it’s that simple! Good luck.
